What is something that you have failed at that you eventually overcame? Explain in full sentences on the lines below. Write your response in paragraph form by indenting, using full sentences, and making a new paragraph when you switch ideas.

When I was in third grade, we took a math test. Seems could feel the eyes of my classmates drilling lasers in my neck. But I was grateful. Grateful that someone knew that :t could overcome anything. No matter what it may be.

[several lines illegible]

[illegible] and I learned that math wasn't all that bad. By 5th grade, I, was one of the best math students in my whole [illegible] these five words made an impact. Let's just say having faith in yourself leads to "mathtastic" things.