Teaching Suggestions for Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. BrainPOP Video

http://www.brainpop.com/socialstudies/famoushistoricalfigures/martinlutherkingjr

Many of the activities below assume the students are working in teams of four students, but you can easily adapt the suggestions to guided group work, learning centers, or individual practice. If you use all of the activities, you can expect to spend two or three days on this mini-unit. The free BrainPOP video and resources are located at the URL above and the remaining printables and resources are in this packet. If you want to access the answer keys and other teacher materials that go with this video, you can sign up for a free educator's account (http://www.brainpop.com/educators) and search for "Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr."

Prior to Showing the Video

- 1. KWL Chart Locate the KWL Chart on BrainPOP by clicking on the link above and looking for the Activities section. You can duplicate this for each student or simply use it as a recording chart for a class activity. Begin by telling your students that you're going to show them a short video about Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Ask them what they already know about Dr. King and the Civil Rights movement and add their ideas to the first column. Then ask them what they want to know about those topics and add them to the chart.
- 2. Vocabulary Matching Activity Some of the vocabulary terms used in the video are quite challenging so you may want to introduce the terms before your students watch it. A fun way to introduce the words is to give each team one page of vocabulary cards (page 5) and one page of definitions (page 6). Ask them to spread all the cards out in the middle of the team and take turns matching a word card to its corresponding definition. At this point they will be guessing, but the activity will make them think about the word meanings. After each team has matched the words and definitions, review the correct answers with them.

During the Video

The video is only 4 minutes long so you may want to let students watch the entire video once through without stopping to discuss words or concepts. Then use one of the activities below.

- 1. Sequencing Events Give each pair one set of Sequencing Events cards on page 7. Have them cut the six cards apart and spread them out between them. As they watch the video, ask them to listen for those events and write the year of the event on the card.
- 2. Stop and Summarize The video presents a lot of information very quickly, so I recommend pausing it at least once every minute. Ask student volunteers to summarize the important events and ideas and clear up any points of confusion.

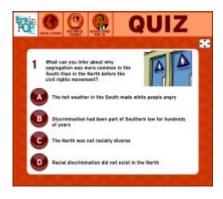

After the Video

1. Complete KWL Chart - After watching the movie and discussing it, ask students to help you add information to the last column on the KWL chart which represents new information that they learned from the video.

- 2. Multiple Choice Quiz Immediately after completing the KWL chart, you can have your students take the BrainPOP quiz together as a class. This quiz is available at the website URL at the top of this page and can be taken on the computer or printed and taken on paper. I'll warn you that it's not easy, so I would discourage you from giving it to students individually until you have worked through it as a class. In fact, I highly recommend you take the quiz yourself first and have the answer key ready. You can get the answer key by signing up for a free educator's account: http://www.brainpop.com/educators To keep your students actively engaged, have them respond by writing the letter of the correct answer on dry erase boards to show you or by using sign language hand signals for the corresponding letters of the alphabet.
- 3. Civil Rights Vocabulary Sentence Practice (Class Review or Worksheet) To make sure students understand how to use the vocabulary terms correctly, you can have them practice using the words in sentences. Choose between the one-page worksheet on page 8 or the two-page version on pages 10 and 11 that can be displayed on an interactive whiteboard. If you use the worksheet, you might want to allow students to work with a partner and take turn filling in the blanks. You'll find an answer key on page 9.
- 4. Vocabulary Concentration Students can use the vocabulary and definition cards to play the traditional game known as Memory or Concentration. Each team or pair mixes up all 20 cards and places them face down in four rows of five cards. Then they take turns flipping over two cards, trying to find a match. If they find matching cards, they keep the cards and take another turn. If the cards don't match, they place them back down and the next player takes a turn. Play continues until all cards have been used.
- 5. Discussion Question Cards To engage students in higher level thinking, use the Discussion Question Cards on page 12 as prompts for a whole-group or small-group cooperative learning activity.
 - Whole Group Think-Pair-Share Discussions: Pair students with a discussion partner and call out one of the questions. Ask students to think about their own answers, and then pair with a partner to discuss them. Next, call on individual students to share what they and their partner discussed.
 - Small Group Team Discussions: Give each team one set of cards to place face down in the center of the team. The first person flips over the top card, reads it aloud, and gives think time. Then starting to the left of the question reader, students take turns responding and sharing ideas. The last person to voice an opinion is the person who read the card aloud.
- 6. Journal Writing As a culminating activity, ask students to write journal reflection entries. Allow them to choose a discussion card question, use the BrainPOP discussion prompt, or create their own journal prompt.
